ANTLERS

1943

Foreword

Though much of the world is eclipsed in darkness today in 1943, a free flag still flies over our school, and over every school in the United States. We, of the Antlers Staff, humble and proud of our precious heritage of American Freedom, try to preserve for you, in this edition of the Antlers, a memory of your high schools days, in which a few years of carefree youth have been made possible by many unsung heroes of the past, and today, by the sacrifices of our brothers, fathers, and friends.

In after years, when the lights of freedom have come on again throughout the world, may there yet arise, as you turn the pages of this little volume, a few of the youthful dreams and memories that made of your high school days, a bright and rosy picture.

The Loyalty

We're loyal to you, E. H. S.
We're orange and black, E.H.S.
We'll back you to stand
Against the best in the land
For we know you have sand.

E. H. S.

Rah! — Rah!

So toss in that ball, E. H. S.
Go crashing ahead, E. H. S.
Our team is our famed protector;
ON boys, for we expect a victory
from you, E. H. S.

To Corporal
Dean Hilborn

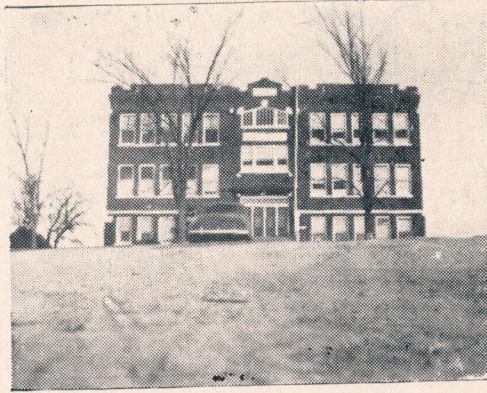

Dedication

To our beloved Corporal Dean Hilborn, former coach of Elk Horn High School, who answered the call to arms, and to all graduates who have so willingly sacrificed their personal desires to the service of their country, we, the Antlers Staff of 1943, do humbly dedicate this publication.

DEAR OLD ELK HORN HIGH

Dear old Elk Horn High,
We'll not forget you,
Though the years have rolled away;
In our hearts you'll ever linger,
To you fond memories ever stray;
Over the hills, over the sea, over the mountains,
Our hearts will ever beat for thee,
And though the years may go,
To you we'll ever show,
Dear Elk Horn High, our loyalty.

PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE EDUCATION

Praise the Lord and pass the education,
Praise the Lord and pass the education
Praise the Lord and pass the education
And we'll smarter be!

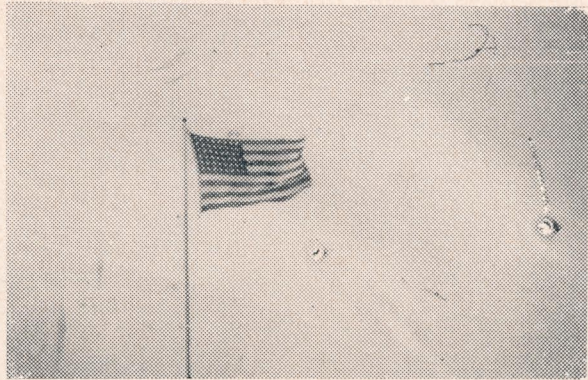

Praise the Lord and study with ambition,
For we know we're under supervision,
Praise the Lord, books are ammunition
In the school's army!

Oh, the superintendent said it,
You've got to give him credit,
For a super-duper teacher is he.
Shoutin':

Praise the Lord and pass the education,
Come on Danes, let's see some meditation,
Praise the Lord, for this administration
Makes us all happy!

Praise the Lord and work with his permission,
We'll reach success on only this condition,
Praise the Lord and pass the education;
And we'll smarter be!

CLASSES

Senior Class History

Today, Sept. 1, 1939, is the most thrilling and most important adventure of our lives. Entering the school house early in the morning, we wander from one barrack to another whispering shyly to one another, "Do you know where Barrack No. 3 is?" or just standing around dazed, hoping that some kind soldier will tell us where to go. Yes . . . today 32 buck privates enlisted to go immediately into training at E. H. H. S. Thirty-two doesn't sound like so many but we've always been proud of the fact that it is one of the largest armies entering E. H. H. S. in many years. In a smaller school it is really confusing to have so many "green rookies" not knowing what to do or say.

Tonight is Sept. 14, and what a night! The sergeants and corporals got together and decided they would really make us work to earn our membership. When we had been painted up to resemble Indians, rather than the military soldiers we tried so hard to represent, we were asked to sing the Loyalty song, and all our senses failed us. Thus we were inducted into Army life.

Dec. 10. Every afternoon girls march down the steps to take over the task of K. P. duty and the boys go to shop class to become skilled engineers. We all walk in an orderly fashion down the stairs, as do all good soldiers. If any soldier is caught shoving or running he is soon directed into an entirely new room where it seems to the frightened Rooky, he isn't very welcome. Of course all soldiers are sent to the guard house for disorderly conduct. After appearing before the commissioned officer, they are more careful of their rude habits.

Today, May 15, 1940, every Rooky is very jutilant because he is going home for his first furlough of three months.

Today, Sept. 1, 1940, all the soldiers are trotting back gaily to the good old barracks of E. H. H. S. to begin a new year as Private First Class soldiers. Today, also, we inducted Jovce Lensch from the Kimballton Army Camp.

Now as March 1, 1941 rolls around we are sad because we are losing many of our buddies. Roselyn Knudsen and Betty Ann Johnson have been transferred to the Audubon Camp. Mervil Petersen is leaving to take up further training in California. Janis Bornholdt has been transferred from Exira.

Most of our soldiers are represented in mixed chorus, athletics and dramatics.

Sept. 1, 1941. By this time we have joined the ranks as corporals and are following a definite pattern—one of skill and energy. We have several top notch soldiers on the basketball and baseball teams who have received the insignia "E."

Alfred Clausen seems to be getting tired of Army life, now that it's almost December, and has gone A. W. O. L. to help his father on the farm.

Robert Mortensen and Verner Koch joined us from the Kimballton Army.

March 1. Darrel Nissen is leaving to take up Sergeant training at Audubon, and Harry Dirgo his share for Uncle Sam in a defense plant and school in Omaha.

March 10. The corporals of E. H. H. S. are giving a U. S. O. entertainment show and are opening the barracks to the public. They are giving their presentation of "Big Hearted Herbert," which was a smash hit.

The years have passed quickly and now Aug. 24, we are surprised to be rushed to the barracks because of an emergency situation. The E. H. H. S. soldiers will be needed on the home front for corn-husking.

The first thing that really branded us as Sergeants was the arrival of our class rings, which we proudly exhibited. John Jensen and Murray Nelsen have joined our ranks as Sergeants, but Roland Eskov has gone A.W.O.L.

Tonight is Sept. 8, and as we lead a bunch of scared Rookies into the gym we could easily imagine how they felt. Nov. 14—The Sergeants granted 24-hour escapade. A jolly time, after having our pictures taken at Exira. April 27, 1943—Lots of practicing, rehearsing, and also lots of fun, and then Sergeants' class play, "Letters to Lucerne," our biggest hit. It has been a busy and sleepy week for the Sergeants because April 29 they are entertained by corporals at a banquet with patriotic theme—even received ration stamps. Soon the Sergeants will graduate and be prepared to forth in the world. Looking forward to May 13, 1943, anxiously but also regretfully. Yet, we sergeants of 1943 have the memories of our many good times together.—THELMA ESBECK '43, VERA LANGE '43.

Junior Class History

It's time to add another stripe to the sleeve of Johnny Doughboy. He's a corporal now and is starting on a new year of taking orders from the higher officers. He's been working hard ever since he was first inducted as a Buck Private. There's been a lot of studying to do, but those good grades certainly served as a reward.

When Johnny first enlisted, he was prepared for a life full of new and interesting things and he got it. He was met at the barracks by a number of draftees and many who had enlisted as he did. It didn't take him long to get acquainted and he soon grew accustomed to the rules and regulations. He also knew where the office guardhouse was, and the commanding officer in charge might look like an all-right fellow, and he was a wonderful superintendent, but then Johnny Doughboy thought it best to keep on the good side of him.

Johnny has had many buddies ever since he enlisted, the following being his buck private chums: Sylvia Anderson, Ivan Boose, Loyce Brumbaugh, Aasta May Carlson, Bonnie Jean Castle, Laverne Christensen, Earl Dirgo, Dalton Gregersen, Joyce Griffith, Jacqueline Henningsen, Isabel Jacobsen, Allan Larsen, Maurice Lykke, Virgil Jacobsen, Edward Jespersen, Howard Juel, Joan Lykke, Annabelle Nelson, Audrey Overgaard, Robert Petersen, LaVonne Sorensen, Lucille Wadell, Norman Wittrup, and Harold Christensen.

A year passes quickly and Johnny, after a short summer furlough, is ready to start back anew another year. A thrilling moment is experienced by him when he finds that his sleeve is no longer bare, but there is now a stripe upon it, which makes him a Private First Class. Johnny's buddies are also first class privates. It looks like a few more have been made soldiers of Elk Horn Barracks, being transferred from some nearby camp. All in all, they are: Sylvia Anderson, Ivan Boose, LaVonne Sorensen, Loyce Brumbaugh, Aasta May Carlson, Harold Christensen, LaVerne Christensen, Joyce Griffith, Jacqueline Henningsen, Isabel Jacobsen, Howard Juel, Allan Larsen, Joan Lykke, Annabelle Nelson, Robert Petersen, Lucille Waddell, Norman Wittrup, Dalton Gregersen, Vernon Baumgardner, Maurice Lykke, Audrey Overgaard, Bonnie Jean Castle, Kenneth Nelson, Earl Dirgo, Virgil Jacobsen, and Edwin Jespersen.

Now it's time for another furlough for Johnny Doughboy and then back to the Army routine.

Coming down to the present, Johnny Doughboy now has two stripes on his sleeve. His buddies are still with him, except for five rookies who had honorable discharges during or after the second year, namely: Dalton Gregersen, Vernon Baumgardner, Bonnie Jean Castle, Virgil Jacobsen, and Edwin Jespersen to enter civilian life. Audrey Overgaard and Earl Dirgo were transferred to another camp. Also, two new rookies were transferred to Elk Horn Barracks as corporals: Kenneth Laursen and Kenneth Bramer. Maurice Lykke was honorably discharged during the first part of the year.

And so, Johnny Doughboy and all his Doughboy pals are doing their part for victory by serving at Elk Horn Barracks as corporals of the EHHS Army.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

On September 1, nineteen hundred and forty-one, fifteen bold students enlisted as Buck Privates. After a severe initiation, they were admitted to the E. H. H. S. barracks at Elk Horn. During the year they struggled diligently with Algebra, General Science, English, Home Ec and Manual Training.

After nine months of this training and a three-month furlough, the regiment was promoted to Privates First Class. Those receiving promotion were: Eugene Hansen, Avery Boose, Franklin Petersen, Maynard Jensen, Gaylord Swensen, Dorothy Jespersen, Phyllis Jorgensen, Mable Jensen, Ruth Waddell, Laverne Hansen, Lois Mae Jensen, Lois Ann Nissen, Raymond Dirgo, Lois Jean Larsen, and Norma Lange. In the fall of 1942 Raymond Dirgo was transferred to a different camp, and later, Laverne Hansen, receiving an honorable discharge, entered civilian life. But the company boasted the addition of Roger Madsen and Glenn Petersen as Privates First Class. Under the excellent instruction of Commanders Plummer, Schæck, Hardine, and Commander-in-chief Knight, they became very learned in such subjects as Geometry, History and English. Some pursued courses in Biology, Manual Training and Home Ec.

Some little rookies have found it hard to be in at taps and others have found it harder to roll out at reveille, but with a few irregularities, the Army routine goes on, with everyone looking forward to being promoted as Corporals and Sergeants.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

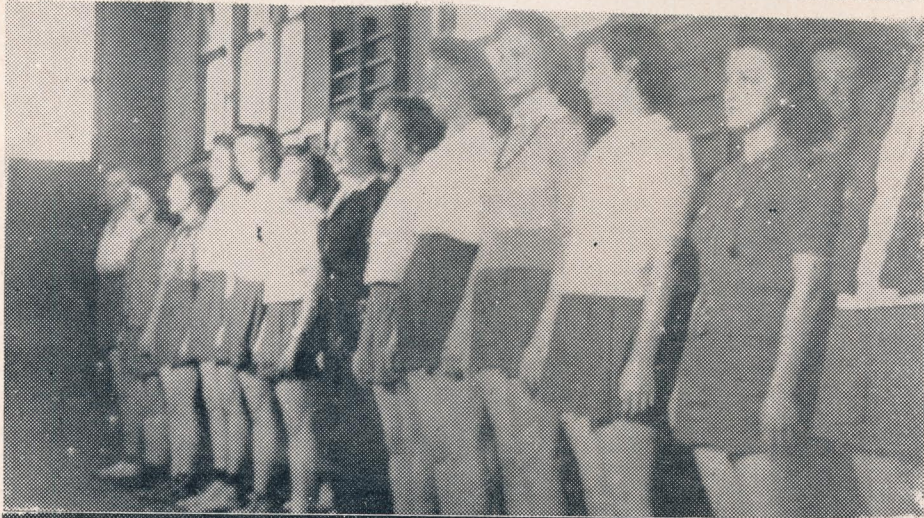

On August 24, 1942, the troop transport made its round and picked up all soldiers, who had been home on a short furlough, and among them were 20 new draftees. The new recruits, or Buck Privates, wandered aimlessly about the Barracks, but soon, the officers called them together and explained the routine, showing them the recreation room, guard house, mess hall, and all the rest of the Barracks. When roll call was taken, the following Buck Privates answered to the roster: Lois Anderson, DeWitt Booth, LaDeane Bramer, Donald Christensen, Donald Doonan, Alice Griffith, Darlene Hansen, Vernon Hansen, Virgil Hansen, Janet Jacobsen, Colleen Johnson, James Larsen, Fern Nielsen, Keith Poldberg, John Leistad, Joyce Nelson, Lyle Poldberg, Douglas Rasmussen, Florence Rasmussen and Levi Swensen.

The official induction into the Army took place September 18, 1942, when the 20 frightened Buck Privates were herded into the recreation center of the Barracks and initiated into the E. H. H. S. Army. Later in the fall, a skating party was held by our Company.

Now, having struggled hard through the Army courses, and having been most conscientious in answering to retreat and reveille, all Buck Privates are happy when they look forward to becoming First Class Privates next year.

BASKETBALL '42 - '43

Prospects for the '42-'43 basketball season were suddenly dimmed when Coach Hilkorn was called into the army—and for a short time things looked gloomy. Then Mr. Knight stepped into the vacancy, and with his characteristic energy whipped the team into fine shape for the season.

With three lettermen back from the previous year, the Elk Horn Basketball team came through with a good record. Throughout the season, Allan Larsen, Warren Jacobsen, and Paul Hansen were high scorers, Allan making as many as 17 points in one game. Kenneth Potts, Eugene Hansen, and Norman Wittrup were the other men on the team and close behind in scoring. This year the team consisted of 6 men, the sixth going in whenever necessary.

The first game saw Irwin winning over the Danes, 15-20. But the Danes came back and trounced Exira, 32-20. Defiance Parochial School fell next under the onslaught of the Danes, the final tally being 33-12. The Danes continued their winning streak by throwing Tennant, 37-12, and Kirkman, 39-26, Panama, 22-19, and again Kirkman, 25-20.

Basketball Squad

Warren Jacobsen

In the County tournament the Danes won over Earling in a thrilling game. The score was 28-27, Paul Hansen coming through in the last few seconds with the winning field goal. But the second game, Elk Horn's disappointment of the season, was Irwin's all the way, with a final score of 43-15. The consolation game was another upset, with the Danes failing to click in the last quarter, after performing beautifully in the first three quarters—thereby leaving Panama the top team with a score of 28-26. The remaining games of the season were with Exira on the Exira floor and Earling at the home of the Danes.

The seconds came through with the same record of more wins than losses. Avery Boose, Robert Mortensen, and Donald Kroman were the top scorers. The second team regulars were: Avery Boose, Donald Kroman, John Jensen, Dewey Ohms, and Robert Mortensen. Despite conditions arising from gas rationing and shortage of tires, several drivers generously consented to transport the teams. With appreciation, thanks should be given to Warren Jacobsen, Walter Wittrup, Marius Hansen, Mr. Knight, and John Jensen.

E Club

The E club is an important organization for E. H. H. S. athletes.

To qualify, a boy must have participated prominently in athletics, earning a point for each quarter of basketball—for each inning of baseball. Fifty-six points entitle him to a letter. These letters have customarily been given at the close of each school year.

This year the E club boasts eight members. Warren Jacobsen is president, Donald Kroman, vice president, Paul Hansen, treasurer, and Allen Larsen, secretary. Mr. Knight is the club's sponsor.

This year the E club was instrumental in helping to organize the Intramural games, which were so much of a success.

Pep Leaders

The Pep club was organized under a little different procedure this year, inasmuch as pep leaders were nominated and voted upon by the students themselves in assembly.

Isabel Jacobsen, Jacqueline Henningsen, and Joan Lykke carried the vote and have furnished each game with lots of organized pep. Their yells have attributed a great deal of the enthusiasm that has been found in every Elk Horn section at the ball games.

G. A. A. Officers

The Girls Athletic Association is organized, like the E club, on a system of points. Girls for membership must qualify with a minimum of 600 points which are gained by participation in sports.

Each year a banquet is held by the G. A. A., and awards are given.

The girls P. T. instructor, Miss Elva Vernie Schack, is the adviser of the G. A. A.

Officers for the year are: Ruth Rasmussen, president; Joan Lykke, vice president; Thelma Esbeck, secretary, and Betty Fries, treasurer.

Music

THE BAND

After an absence of several years of instrumental music, the school felt a need for a band, not only for the experience of the students, but as a medium of entertainment as well. As a result of this, Miss Doris Hardine was assigned the task of teaching music and developing, from the ground up, what was later to become a band.

The first obstacles, the difficulty of getting instruments and teaching fundamentals, were overcome, and by November most of the pupils had advanced far enough to begin playing as a unit.

A couple of months did much toward the smoothing out of tone and elimination of mistakes. By this time Miss Hardine had worked up the band to a point where it could begin playing in public, and she arranged several Christmas carols which were played at the Christmas program, and also a number of pep-songs to be played at basketball games.

Band personnel is as follows:

Clarinets: Cloyd Christensen, Virgil Hansen, LaDeane Bramer.

Flute: Verner Koch.

Cornets: Marilyn Knight, Isabel Jacobsen, Joan Lykke, Lois Jean Larsen, Darleen Hansen, Clark Jensen, Robert Syndergaard, Phyllis Jorgensen, Shirley Mathisen.

Baritone: Kirk Hansen.

Bass Drum: Folmer Petersen. Percussion: Toby Henningsen.

Trombones: Joan Jessen, Alice Griffith, Janet Jacobsen, Howard Juel.

Tuba: LaVerne Christensen.

Music

SEXTETTE—Joyce Griffith, Gerda Leistad, Betty Fries, Helen Nielsen, Lillian Sorensen, Loyce Brumbaugh.

The Girls chorus and Sextette meet every Tuesday and Thursday and practice songs which they are usually given an opportunity to perform on public occasions.

This year they added cheer to the Christmas season by house-to-house caroling.

The presiding officers for this year are: president, Helen Nielsen; librarian, Norma Rasmussen, and secretary, Lillian Sorensen.

Sextette girls were asked to help entertain at the Bond Drive party and at the Luther League Christmas program.

FRONT—Colleen Johnson, Florence Rasmussen, Lois Ann Nissen, Alice Griffith, LaDeane Bramer.

SECOND—Helen Nielsen, Lois Mae Jensen, Bonnie Nielsen, Norma Petersen, Joyce Nelson, Loyce Brumbaugh, Lois Anderson, Lucille Waddell.

Christmas at the Barracks

Plummer's art beautifies the trophy case.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

On December 16, the Freshman and Sophomore girls held a Christmas party for their mothers in the Mess Hall, with Miss Schack as sponsor.

A clever luncheon was served, and the remainder of the afternoon was spent in entertainment. Three contests were held: the first a guessing game, wherein everyone guessed the number of kernels of corn in a jar; the second contest consisted of unscrambling words pertaining to Christmas, and Chinese checkers was played the remainder of the time. The winner of the contests, Mrs. Earl Anderson, was awarded a Defense Stamp corsage. The Mess Hall was decorated with large snowmen, pine branches, and candles, and there was a large Christmas tree with electric lights and tinsel in front of a full-length mirror.

Gifts were exchanged among guests, and, after a social chat, the mothers departed for home, while the girls awaited call for retreat.

"... and may all your Christmases be bright."

The Christmas Program

An annual Christmas program is always presented at Elk Horn which usually includes a musical operetta by the grades and a one-act play by the high school.

This year the program was made doubly interesting because it marked the first public appearance of the band. Miss Doris Hardine and Miss Marjorie Norby successfully directed the grade operetta. In "When Christmas Comes," a school bus, loaded with children bound for the Christmas program at school, is stuck in the mud outside the house of Grandma and Grandpa, who are unhappy because they have received word that their children cannot be with them for Christmas. The children are coaxed into presenting their school program for the old couple. At the end of their entertainment they are rewarded by Grandma with gingerbread men, and a happy telegram informs the old people that their children are coming, after all. Most of the grades were represented in the play. Outstanding speaking parts were taken by Shirlev Mathisen, Darwin Petersen, Gordon Esbeck, Shirley Petersen and Folmer Petersen.

"Eternal Life" was a serious war play by Fred Eastman, the theme being the calm and hope that the promises of Christianity were able to bring when carried into an English bomb shelter where a family had been trapped for three days. The play was unusually well acted by a group of Drama Class members, directed by Anna Plummer.

"Early To Bed, Early To Rise"

The Junior Class play, a three-act comedy, "Early to Bed, Early to Rise," was presented to a full house and an appreciative audience on February 27. Director of the play was Anna Plummer. The story concerned the doings of a small girl whose love for pets caused much anxiety to her apartment-dwelling family. Further complications arise when Patsy holds the lucky ticket on a model home, offered by a local newspaper for advertising purposes; and in the person of Laura Montgomery, the southern siren, who tries to win Jim Griggs, the handsome architect, from Marion, Patsy's charming sister. The play ended with all difficulties ironed out, and with the family happily planning long days ahead in their prospective new home, where they can keep white rats and skunks and guinea pigs to Patsy's heart's content.

The cast of the play was as follows:

ORGANIZATIONS

News Staff

Echoes From the Hill, the school news published in the weekly Review, has been very successful this year, being edited by Ruth Rasmussen — with Miss Plummer acting as faculty adviser. Every Monday Ruth assigns the feature articles for the week, and Tuesday afternoon the write-ups are typed and turned in at the Review office. On Thursday the paper appears, and the news staff eagerly scan their school page to see how their write-ups look in print. Perhaps, the most interesting part of the Echoes is "Chaff," which is a collection of about-the-school anecdotes, assiduously compiled this year by Joyce Griffith and Isabel Jacobsen.

The name "Echoes From the Hill" was given the Elk Horn high school news, published in the Review, in the fall of 1930, the name replacing the less imaginative "Class Notes."

The Echoes staff of 1943 has been made up of the following students:

Assistant Editor	-----	Lillian Sorensen
Sports	-----	Paul Hansen
Chaff	---	Isabel Jacobsen, Joyce Griffith
Personals	---	Norma Rasmussen, Virginia Hansen, Helen Nielsen

Antlers Staff

This year the Antlers staff has put forth much effort in making their publication a great success. This was possible only through the excellent cooperation of every staff member. Vera and Thelma gathered class dues from the Sergeants and dug into the musty files of past history. Ruth Rasmussen, assistant editor, continually marched to the office, keeping posted on latest events for the calendar. Mr. Knight dictated records of ball games to Alice Jacobsen, while Asta May Carlson, our poet, hummed to herself, fitting words to a parody of "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." Verner K. was our candid camera hound. Betty Fries' technique in selling advanced subscriptions was excellent, and our business managers, Paul Hansen, Ken Potts, and Norman Wittrup, by expert salesmanship, put our Antlers financially in the clear. Norma Rasmussen searched through the large edition of Webster's dictionary for suitable words to express the singing of the Glee club, and Sylvia was quite depressed until she found the missing link in the history of the Corporals. Joyce G. supplied the fine collection of moron stories and Chaff.

The credit goes largely, though, to Captain Miss Plummer who made this publication possible by helping us direct our time, plan layouts, and even pop corn for ball games. Editor Lillian Sorensen, the presiding officer of the 1943 Antlers, and her assistants, feel their task to have been a thoroughly enjoyable one, and hope they have produced an interesting book for you.

Office

The office is a busy place. That's where Mr. Knight, with his two assistants, Alice Jacobsen and Sylvia Anderson, preside over the affairs of the school.

Many things of major importance are discussed in the office. Excuses for absences are issued there, ball games are scheduled, and speakers are procured for the assembly programs. Every six weeks report cards are sent out to each student.

The many activities that have their beginning in the office make it the hub of school affairs.

LIBRARY STAFF

The library, off the assembly, is a very necessary place for students in study hall, and an interesting place as well, since not only reference material, but many interesting fiction stories, are found on the library shelves. This year Gerda Leistad was head librarian, assisted by Jacqueline Henningsen, Lois Ann Nissen, and Darlene Hansen.

Campus Leaders

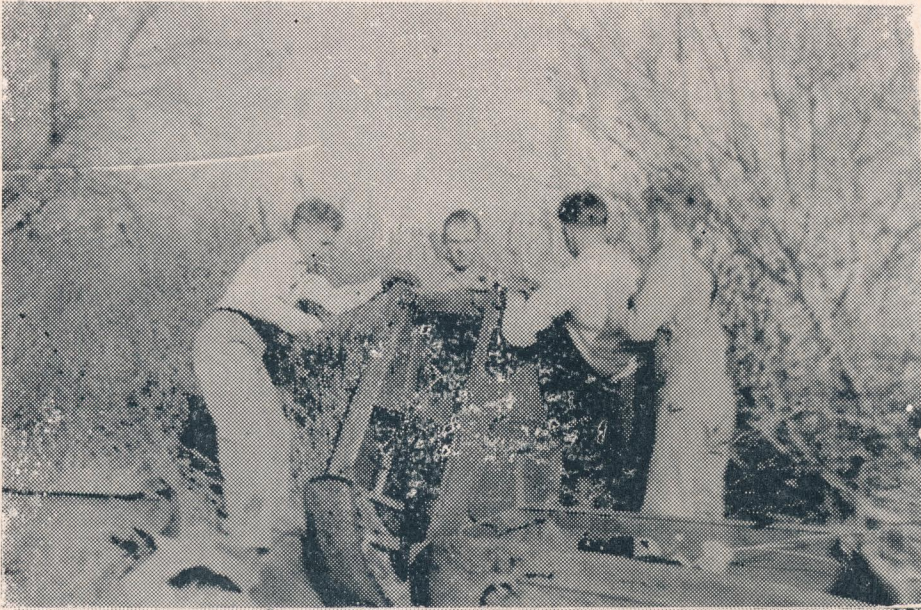

At the beginning of the second semester, the assembly, under direction of the Antler's staff, undertook to select its twelve outstanding students, six boys and six girls. In the final ballot casting, however, a tie created a problem, until it was decided to include a seventh outstanding student to each list of six. The assembly was asked to consider participation in outside activities, scholastic ability, willingness to cooperate, and all around good sportsmanship.

Paul, Warren, Kenneth, Allan, Donald, and Norman have been especially outstanding in athletics; all are members of the E club. Verner has rendered the Antlers staff an indispensable service as photographer; he has also been active in plays and band.

Lillian, Ruth and Joyce have headed Echoes and Antlers staff, and also cooperated splendidly on plays. Alice decidedly earns the honor by her work as head office girl. She and Thelma have had parts in several plays. Isabel deserves much merit for her work as cheer leader, while Betty's fine work as an actress and her cooperative spirit on the Antlers staff have gained for her a real regard by her classmates.

We take pleasure in presenting the Campus Leaders of 1943.

AN AFTERNOON OF FUN

The sun was shining brightly. It was about the first day all year that it wasn't rainy or cold. The grass was green and glistening and little yellow dandelions and some fluffy white heads dotted the landscape.

And to think we had to go to school on such a rare afternoon!

My friend and I were strolling to school. As we passed the Elk cafe we were greeted by a volley of voices. It seemed no one wanted to go to school. Just let the teachers sit up there by themselves. Some of us had to go up to the school house to wind up some last minute business. At five till one just about all the high school students were getting ready to start on a picnic. Then as last bell rang, half of the group, two-faced and scared, backed out and ran to school. That is one reason why I don't feel so guilty, because I know that even those who did not skip wanted to and had made plans to. When I went to Confirmation class, I learned that it is just as bad to plan a murder as it is to commit a murder so I think those who suffered through that afternoon of school, wishing they were with the rest of us are just as guilty. They have their fun today laughing at us, but that is all they will get, because it is raining as usual, and they can't go on a picnic. Tuesday was really a perfect day for a picnic.

Well, after the sticks had been thinned out there were about 20 of us. The boys got cokes in a big sack to take along and we all stopped in the store and got potato chips, rolls, oranges, cake, cookies, etc. With our arms loaded down, we started walking to Timber Lake, "the picnic spot of Elk Horn." Breezes were rippling the muddy water and cows were grazing peacefully at a safe distance in the other end of the pasture. The boat was lying, full of water, against the bank.

We scrambled through the barbed wire fence without any mishaps. Maurice was the first through (400) and he was the first to go sailing in the leaky boat. The rest of us put our sacks in the safety of the tree branches and watched the show. He lost his paddle and was becalmed in the middle of the pond. After a lot of splashing and several vain attempts, he got a stick. With a flourish he landed safely and stepped out for the next passengers (464). Joyce and Paul were the next brave navigators, but after seeing Maurice, they were wiser and took off their shoes and stockings. The boat didn't work so good with two passengers, and it rocked back and forth, nearly tipping them into the briny deep. Paul landed safely and hopped out, but Joyce was left in the back of the boat. She climbed to her feet and as she stood up the boat started to sink. Up to her knees in the water, she screamed for help. We all stood and laughed at her for a while, then Paul gave the boat a tug toward shore, nearly making her lose her balance, and gave her a hand.

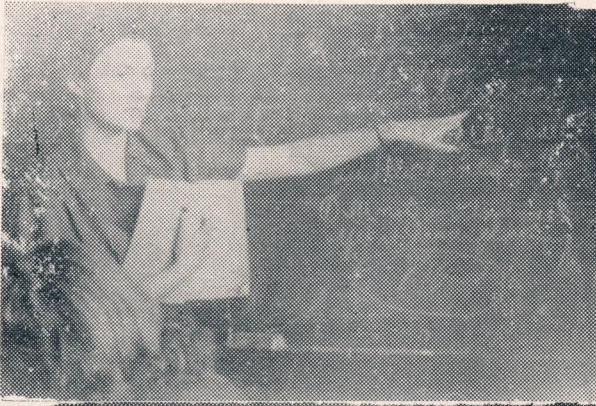

After that the thrill of boat riding began to die off; we started to get (600) hungry. Potato chips were gobbled up, each person eating about a package. "Nor" had brought a bottle opener and we started to drink our cokes. They had already started to get warm, so some of them put theirs in the lake to keep them cool. I was thirsty so I just drank mine warm.

We romped around the pasture a while and pretty soon I stepped in some mud and got my shoes dirty. We discovered a little creek of clean water and I washed my shoes.

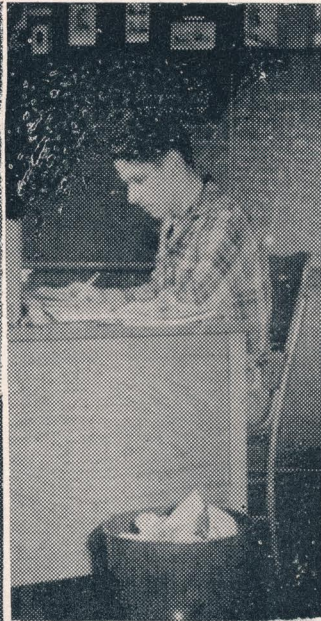

The grass was nice over by the little brook so we took our rolls over there and ate some more. I was beginning to get full.

A honking horn, accompanied by a car, appeared around the curve. It was the bunch that had skipped out after their tests. They told us about their narrow escapes and we gave them some of the food we had left over.

Pretty soon we couldn't find anything else to do, so we started back to town. Kenny insisted that no one should walk so we all piled in and on top of his car. I stood on one of the running boards with about five other kids. I had a peeled orange in my hand and I'll bet the person who sat right inside got a trickle of orange juice down his neck. I don't believe I was ever so afraid I was going to break my neck, as I was then, as I held on to thin air for life and death. We got off before we came to Main Street and walked down the street in a more civilized manner (868).

About the time we got down to the cafe the other boys and girls were coming out of school. Some of them felt kind of cheap because they had backed out and didn't stop to talk. Some stopped and told us all the horrible things that were going to happen to us.

"Let's go up to school and get our books and get the scolding over with," suggested someone, so all of us went up to school. We went into the assembly for our books and papers and down to the locker for our tennis shoes, but no one stopped us or said a word (1000).

The next step was to go home and find out what my mother had to say. She hadn't been to any club or party that day so she didn't know about it. My grandmother had been up and had remarked about all the school children down town but that was all she had heard.

First, I asked her if she was in good humor. That is the best icebreaker I know. Right away she popped up with, "Have you been in a car accident?" I soothed her and told her that it wasn't anything nearly so bad. Then I broke it to her. The first thing she said was, "Well, I won't write you an excuse." She scolded me for a while and said that was something she had never done when she went to school. I asked her if she hadn't wanted to sometimes, though. She didn't say anything for a while and when dad came home and she told him, she started to laugh so I knew she must not be so very angry.

After a while, my brother rushed in bursting with news (1200). He nearly broke his neck trying to tell mom I had played hookey that afternoon. Mom did not say anything and I started to laugh. Then he caught on that she already knew about it. I was really glad I had told her before he came home.

I helped mom clean house all day Wednesday and she kept saying, "I don't suppose you will be home Friday. You'll have to sit up in school all day to make up what you missed!"

Each time my brother came home he had heard another rumor about what our fate (1300) would be. I believe he was more worried about it than I was.

Thursday, Lillian called up and said that she and Bonnie and I had to decorate the assembly for Commencement. It was raining, but we went out and begged iris and bridal wreath from people to fill the baskets. All the teachers were up at school working. They talked to us but none of them said anything about Tuesday afternoon. We figured then they weren't going to say anything or else they were really going to spring a big surprise on us Friday morning.

Friday morning finally dawned, cloudy and rainy, like most other days. At about nine o'clock we all took our places in the assembly. We exchanged greetings with our friends whom we hadn't seen for two days.

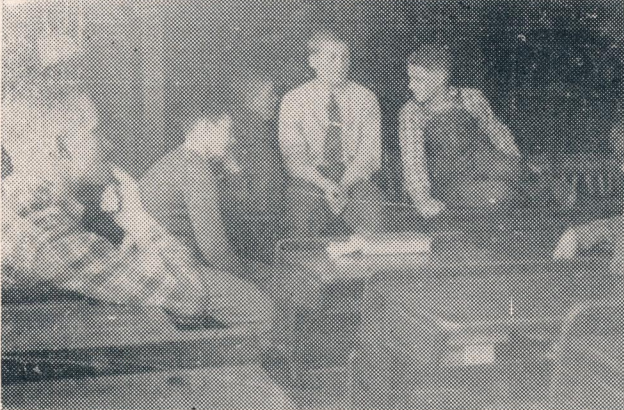

Then Mr. Knight came in and wished us all good luck, etc. Then he told us that those who skipped school would have their grades lowered until they wrote a two thousand word theme. That sounded like an enormous amount of words for one person to think of (1534). After thinking it over for a little while, I decided it would be wisest to write the theme. Several others planned to write a theme also but some were satisfied with their grades even if they had been lowered a notch.

When I came home, my mother laughed at me and she thought it was a pretty good punishment. I sat right down and started to write and I am not going to move until I am through. My hand is beginning to get cramped and the smell of the dinner on the stove makes me so hungry I can hardly stand it (1656). The rest of the family is getting hungry, too, but I'm not going to move until this document is finished.

This week will be one I'll remember long into my gray (1700) haired future. When my children and grandchildren skip school, as undoubtedly they will if they are of the average type, I will try to scold them, then I will remember how I skipped school once. Just once is enough to give you the experience. It is fun in a way; it makes you worry a little bit until you know for sure what your punishment is but in about another week when everything is over, it will be a happy memory that will bring a smile each time you think of it (1792).

When school is nearly over and an especially nice day comes along, it is practically impossible to sit in a school house all afternoon. That has been proved by countless thousands of boys and girls down through the years. The fact has been immortalized in the stories of those American classic boys, Tom Sawyer and Penrod. Grown-ups read those stories and laugh, but some of them don't apply the same principle to their own children when they try the same trick. As I see it, there will always be children who will play hookey and there will always be someone waiting to punish them. This punishment will be enough to stop some of the boys and girls from doing it again. Some of the more mischievous and restless will do it anyway. Those who did it just once will not regret it. It was fun and it was exciting and the punishment was tiresome, and it will be an experience hard to forget.

We did pick a good day for our picnic, because it has rained every day since then (2000). Now, as I finish this, it looks as if the sun were trying to break through the rain, to give the whole business a happy ending.
